"Love's young dream is one that fills the heart with intensest joy. Sometimes the happy dream is realized. Frequently, it is not. In many cases loving young couples fall short of true married happiness because of the ill-health of the young wife. A woman who is tortured by pains due to weakness and disease of the organs that are distinctly feminine, cannot be an amiable and helpful wife. Troubles of this nature rack the nerves with pain and sap the strength. Under their malign influence the most amiable and helpful disposition will become soured. The wife that promised to be a cheerful, capable and willing helpmate surprises her husband by proving a sickly, nervous, fretful and helpless invalid. This unfortunate outcome of "Love's young dream" may be prevented or remedied by resorting to the right medicine for troubles of this nature.

The right medicine is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Over 90,000 women have said so in unsolicited letters to its discoverer Dr R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. The "Favorite Prescription" acts directly upon the organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. It makes them strong and healthy. It allays inflammation and soothes pain. It relieves the strain upon the nerves. It prepares for motherhood and insures the health of the child. All medicine dealers sell it.

"I take pleasure," writes Mrs. Jessie Fulfer, of Eulogy, Bosque Co, Texas, "in writing you again I am in better health than I have been in six years. I think your medicine is the best in the world. I hope every woman who is afflicted as I was will take it. Your 'Favorite Prescription' has saved my life. I was not able to get up when I was sick until I began to take your medicine. I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me. You can use my statement as you like."

Constipation is the all-embracing cause of ill-health. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—"Waiter, it is almost half an hour since I ordered that turtle soup." Waiter—"Sorry, sir; but you know how slow turtles are."—Tit-Bits.

That Baseball Funeral.

Employer—I thought you wanted to go to your grandmother's funeral this afternoon.

Office Boy—Please, sir, it was postponed on account of wet grounds.

Take Their Sorrows Cheerfully.

The following appears in an appeal in the Church Times on behalf of a proposed mortuary chapel in the East end, London: "On the south side of the church we have a spare piece of ground, where we propose to build a light, cheerful mortuary chapel, large enough to contain three or four coffins at the same time." A committee of the West Bromwich town council have rewarded their cemetery superintendent for his long service by granting him a plot of ground in the corporation cemetery for his own private use.

Summer Fancy Work.

The fancy work of the moment of the modish young woman is not with wools or silks or any of the embroidery materials. On her light work basket is piled a tempting array of sheer organdies, bolts of baby ribbon, and pieces of one-half-inch wide lace edgings. The organdies are in various delicate shades with small, indistinct figures, and they are pale blue, pink, cream, green or other tint, which is perfectly matched in the ribbons. From these the busy fingers are fashioning corset covers to be worn under the sheer shirt waists of organdie and batiste, which will be included in this same modish young woman's summer outfit. The little slips are cut in three pieces with seams only under the arms. They are trimmed all around the upper and lower edges and up the front with a narrow beading, finished with an equally narrow lace edge. Through the beading the ribbon runs, and by it they are drawn into a full and pretty fit. They are sleeveless, the armholes edged with the same lace and beading to tie up on the shoulders. The ribbon may be run unbrokenly and tie around the garment to draw it into a bolero effect in front, or it may end at corsage and belt line separately. They are dainty and not unnecessary little confections of summer toilet.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Currant Jelly.

Place the currants in a preserving kettle over the fire and cook till the juice flows freely; remove, and when cold press out all the juice; return the liquid to the fire and boil without a cover 20 minutes; then measure the liquid; add to every pint of juice one pound of sugar, boil five minutes, then fill into jars or glasses. In case you make several gallons of jelly at once, a good plan is to try half a cupful of the liquid and boil it with half a cup of sugar a few minutes; set it in a cool place; if the jelly, when cold, is firm you may add the sugar to the boiling juice; if not, boil it a little longer, as a large quantity takes longer to boil than a small quantity.—Brooklyn Eagle.

—Butcher—"I need a boy about your size, and will give you 12 shillings a week." Applicant—"Will I have a chance to rise?" Butcher—"Yes; I want you to be here at four in the morning."—Tit-Bits.

—Mamma—"Georgy, if you eat any more of that pudding, you'll have a headache in the morning." Georgy—"Well, there'll be the one satisfaction that I shall know just what to lay it to."—Boston Transcript.

—It's a strange thing," said the old fisherman, meditatively. "What's strange?" asked his better half. "Why, a man always runs to keep from being caught, while shad are never caught until they begin to run."—Yonkers Statesman.

—"I'm mighty glad my wife coaxed me into getting her a wheel," said the lean passenger. "Makes her happy, eh?" said the fat passenger. "She's so stuck on riding that she ain't going to clean house this year."—Indianapolis Journal.

—Mamma—"That big building is where all the little boys who have no mothers and fathers live, Arnold. Isn't it nice?" Arnold (after some thought) —"I'd rather live in a smaller house, and have you, though."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

GOLDBUG TACTICS.

Brown University is situated at Providence, Rhode Island. Professor Andrews has been President of the University for years. President Andrews believes in an American financial policy, that is, he is a bimetallist. One of the students of the University is a son of Standard Oil Rockefeller, who has made many millions by reason of his interest in the oil trust, which is one of the greatest monopolies in the United States. It appears that the trustees of the University expected a gift of money from Mr. Rockefeller and as their expectations were not realized attributed Mr. Rockefeller's delinquency to the financial theories of President Andrews. To ingratiate themselves with the oleaginous millionaire they dispensed with the services of President Andrews and politely notified the gentleman that his resignation would be accepted.

Whether Mr. Rockefeller, in consideration of the action of the trustees of Brown University, made a liberal donation to the institution or not has not yet been made known to the public, but the course of the trustees should receive universal condemnation. It shows what the gold men will do and what the people are to expect from them. President Andrews has not been offensively conspicuous as a bimetallist. When asked to give his views on the money question he has done so. He believes with the founders of the Government in the coinage and use of gold and silver as money. He does not believe in discriminating against either metal and holds that the mints should be open to both on terms of equality. He contends that a silver dollar of 412½ grains, bearing the stamp of the United States Mint and a legal tender for all debts, would be one hundred cents if all the silver produced in the United States should be coined into such dollars. That a gentleman entertaining such views should be permitted to remain at the head of one of our educational institutions is incompatible with the ideas of millionaire monopolists, who want the purchasing power of their dollars doubled by keeping the country on a gold basis, and in deference to their wishes, and that thrift may follow fawning, such men as Professor Andrews must step down and out.

COAL MINERS TO STRIKE.

It is authoratively announced that all the bituminous coal miners in the United States have been ordered out on a strike. It is estimated that 250,000 men will be involved, as circulars have been sent to organizations representing that number.

Some time ago representatives of the coal miners met in convention at Columbus, Ohio, and adopted a scale of prices. It was not deemed advisable to attempt the enforcement of the new scale at that time, but a committee was appointed and authorized to order a strike at a seasonable time. The committee considers the present time opportune and has, therefore, ordered a strike.

It is stated that the coal miners receive from 55 to 60 cents per ton of 2,240 pounds for mining coal. This is less than the tariff on coal, so that if coal was mined free of charge in foreign countries and transported free to the United States it could not compete in the market with the home product. What will be the effect of 250,000 men engaged in one pursuit going out on a strike? It is seldom that strikes result beneficially to those engaged in them, but this, possibly, may prove an exception to the general rule. In these piping times of goldbug prosperity with thousands of men out of employment, the mine owners may be able to find men to take the places of the strikers. If they are, and the strikers attempt to prevent them from working, trouble is certain to result and the strikers, as usual, will be worsted. For years past the principal use for the United States army has been in the suppression of strikes, and strikers, however well organized, cannot resist the power of the government successfully.

No one will deny the right of the coal miners to strike for living wages, but many people who deeply sympathize with the miners in their efforts to get wages that will support themselves and their families, will dispute their right to prevent by force others from taking their places. When they do that the law interposes its strong arm and the strikers are forced to yield. That has been the general result of strikes and it doubtless will be unless there is a general revolution.

In a recent publication "The Land of the Dollar," the author, an Englishman by the way, remarked among other things, that "San Francisco is said to be the only city in the United States where you can maintain a semi-official wife without the least predjudice to position in society." This statement, though untrue in the main, is evidently borne out by the recent developements in the Abell-Dimond case. The venerable General, although a man of family and position, preferred the charms and endearments of a pretty widow to the cares and worry of his fireside, and his billet doux to his charming inamorata would furnish an elegant field for a penny novelette.

The best of liniments is Trib.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

A general strike of the United Mine Workers of America has been ordered for July 4th, by the executive boards also by the District Presidents. The official order covers the fact that at the last annual convention of the mine workers at Columbus, O., held January 12th it was determined that the scale of prices should be advanced and the schedule was recited in detail. The order goes on and says that in the general business revival and industrial improvement, which is earnestly proclaimed, we ought to share and if we do not attempt to share we shall rob ourselves and those dependent upon us. Let the watchword be "Mine workers are entitled to a fair day's pay for a fair day's work." Local companies are directed to be formed and to see that action is taken at once

To insure success great care should be exercised by all, that no breach of the peace occur at any time or place, or under any circumstances. Bulletins will be issued from time to time to keep you informed of the progress of affairs.

The officers say that 375,000 men are involved as proposed strikers in the five States that come under the order. At Pittsburg, Pa., Chattanooga, Tenn., and St. Louis, Mo, the situation is already becoming serious and the indications are that a general strike will prevail.

John M. Plunkett, a Customs Inspector, met with a horrible death yesterday morning at San Francisco. He was on the tug Resolute attending to his duties and she collided with the scow Sacramento. Plunkett was crushed to death in the pilot house of the tug.

It is semi-officially announced that the President will send a special message to Congress next week recommending the creation of a currency commission to consider a revision of the monetary system of the United States.

S W. Wild, Superintendent for Henry Miller at Bakersfield, Cal. states that three ranch hands attempted to kidnap him and force him to sign a check for $25,000, but the scheme was discovered and the plotters failed.

The Durrant murder case has resolved itself into a state of such confusion that it will require the combined efforts of the State and United States Supreme Court to restore it to its proper legal condition.

Harry R. Peterson of Descans, Ohio was killed by a derrick at San Diego yesterday. He leaves a wife and family.

THE action of the San Francisco banks in turning their money and solvent credits into non-taxable United States bonds, just before the time for the assessor to come around, is certainly not a good example in citizenship. By this method, it is said, the San Francisco banks will escape paying taxes on about $16,000,000 of property. Banks probably use the courts more than any other one class of business, and yet in this case they have attempted to avoid paying their share for the support of Government. Taxes, due from any man or institution, are as much an honest debt as though they were a note of hand. To avoid the payment of the one is as dishonest as to avoid the payment of the other, and yet it is these banks that, during the late campaign, called William J. Bryan and his followers repudiationists.—Bee.

EVIDENTLY Senator Hanna is not particularly admired by Ohio Democrats, judging by the following clause in their platform: "We denounce and protest against the action of Senator Hanna in voting to nullify the memorial presented to Congress by the Legislature of Ohio in favor of the Cuban patriots." It is not probable, however, that the blast will upset his determination to continue to wear the Senatorial toga from Ohio, but it will serve to remind him that even during his brief career in the Senate his efforts are far from appreciated.

SAN LUIS OBISPO COUNTY has been the first in the State of California to take advantage of the law passed by the recent Legislature, providing for the organization of County Fire Insurence companies. The law was passed primarily in the interest of farming communities, and provides that twenty-five or more residents, owning not less than $50,000 worth of property in the aggregate.

The law is similar in its provisions to the law passed at the last session of the Legislature of this State.

Serenaded.

The JOURNAL office was serenaded last evening by Hastings' splendid band and the Elite Glee Club.

These organizations are Reno productions and without any intention of flattery or boasting of our musical talent, the combination of the two could visit any city on the coast and would not only attract attention from musical people but would gain popularity wherever they went.

The band not only is composed of excellent musicians, both in brass and orchestra, but the quartette in its particular specialties, is second to none on the coast. The JOURNAL extends its thanks to the boys and heartily invites them to call again and bring their instruments.

MET IN MIDOCEAN.

Strange Meeting of a Long-Separated Uncle and Nephew.

The story of a meeting in midocean between an uncle and nephew who had not seen each other for years was told by Capt Coombs, of the American bark Essex, which arrived in this port the other day, says the Philadelphia Press. The Essex had on board the captain and crew of the British ship Aeronaut, from Santa Fe, an Argentine Republic port, about 600 miles up the Rio de la Plata.

The Aeronaut was lumber laden, and shortly after leaving the mouth of the river encountered a storm, during which she was dismasted The helpless vessel shortly afterward sprung a leak, and it was not long before she became water logged. While in this condition the ship Annie Burrill, from Buenos Ayres to New Orleans, fell in with the helpless hulk, and took off her crew. A few days later the Essex was met and the Aeronaut's people were transferred to her When he stepped on the deck of the Essex Capt. Henry Fancy, of the Aeronaut, thought he recognized the skipper. A closer look convinced him that he was not at fault, and, stepping forward, he said:

"How are you, uncle?"

Capt. Coombs was much surprised, as he had no recollection of ever having seen the speaker. He asked his name and when told that the man he was taking into port was Henry Fancy, his sister's son, he was overjoyed. He had not seen Capt. Fancy since the latter was a small boy.

THE CAMEL'S EXPERIENCE.

This Ship of the Desert Looked Woeful for a Time.

A large camel which was landed at Hoboken a few days ago from the Bremen line steamer Dresden had an experience which probably never before fell to the lot of a "ship of the desert," says the New York Press.

He made the voyage in a large box, and as there wasn't room enough in it for any self-respecting animal the camel sat down in sheer disgust. He sat that way for days and days while the ship rolled and made all sorts of heavy weather. When the dejected animal was finally landed and tried to stand up he couldn't use his rear props at all. They had become paralyzed with their long stay in a cramped position The camel wasn't any good, it seemed, and, as a big price had been paid for him, there was a general lamentation. Such a picture of woe was never seen in Hoboken.

At last a genius suggested a radical cure. The camel, by his advice, was placed in a sling and hoisted up until his toes touched the ground. He paddled the air for a spell with his fore legs, and finally the rear props came to life and joined in the exercise. They lowered him to the floor and, after he had tested his rear legs somewhat gingerly, he was as good as new. But he doesn't sit down any more. Once was enough for him

THE RAT-CATCHER OF PARIS.

An Official Who Has Caught Over 1,000,000 Rats in His Time.

The French are essentially a practical people. They leave little to chance, and this is probably why they are so successful in business, says the Sketch. Paris boasts of an official rat-catcher, a certain M. Henri Dayve, who is, in his way, quite a character. He has served the town in his capacity of chief rat executioner for 35 years, and he tells with pride that during that time he has caught, unaided by the use of a trap, over 1,000,000 rats with his own hands. He is extremely proud of his profession, and on his card is emblazoned a crest formed by two rats rampant.

Nowadays M. Dayve's labors are comparatively uninteresting, but during the siege the official rat-catcher made a small fortune, for not only the common folk but the purveyors of the great restaurants were only too glad to pay 20 cents each for a well-fed rodent Indeed, in time a plump rat ran up to as much as 60 cents. M. Dayve and his assistants —for his post is by no means a sinecure—searched out their victims in the famous sewers. M. Dayve often turns an honest penny by selling live rats to those who delight in what may be styled a rat battue, for there is very little sport about rat-catching conducted on the prepared rodent plan. An amateur will often pay as much as $13 for 100 live rats.

MADE MISERABLE BY "13."

This Conductor Has Good Reason to Be Superstitious.

No more firm believer in the proverbial bad luck associated with the number 13 is to be found in the city than Conductor Samuel Sharp, of a Germantown local train, says the Philadelphia Record. His parents had 13 children, of whom he was the youngest, and none of them ever prospered. As the thirteenth child, however, Samuel has had more troubles than any of his brothers and sisters. After countless mishaps during his school days he started in to earn his living as a newsboy on the cars when he was 13 years of age. One Friday, the 13th day of the month, not long after he entered the service, there was a wreck on the road and he was laid up in a hospital with a couple of broken ribs for 13 weeks.

Some years later, when a brakeman, his uncle died and left him $1,300, but just as he was about to get married on the money the bank failed and he lost it all, feeling, of course, more disappointed than if it had never been left to him. Gradually he worked his way up and became baggage master, and then he did marry. Unwittingly, however, he went to housekeeping at 1313 South Thirteenth street and his young wife died within the year, leaving him broken-hearted. Since he has been conductor his train has run over 13 men and he hopes that he has now reached the limit. It is an utter impossibility to get him to punch the 13th trip on a commutation ticket, and when hard pressed he hands his punch to the passenger, with the request to do it for him.

MORAVIAN VIEW OF DEATH.

A Beautiful and Impressive Custom of the Moravians.

Clifford Howard contributes to the Ladies' Home Journal an interesting article upon the Moravians of Bethlehem, Pa., and their religious customs:

"Upon the death of one of the congregation," he writes, "the event is announced, not by the monotonous, mournful tolling of the bell, but by the deep-breathing, melodious music of trombones, played in the open belfry steeple of the church by the trombone choir; and as the deep, sweet notes of the familiar hymn are borne to the people below they reverently drop their work to listen. 'Hark!' they whisper, 'the horns are blowing; some one has gone home!' 'Gone home!'—perhaps nothing more beautifully exemplifies the perfect, unquestioning faith of these devout people than that expressive utterance, the sincerity of which is ever demonstrated by the lack of mourning at the passing away of a member of the household, however dearly beloved; so true and heartfelt is the Moravian belief that death is but the entrance to a brighter, happier home. The trombones are also used at the touching funeral services held at the grave; and amid their sad, yet inspiring, strains the departed one is laid to his eternal rest On all occasions, whether of death or joy, the trombones lend their sweet solemnity in fitting breath. From the steeple they herald the festival day of each of the choirs, and in all open-air services their mellifluous tones are ever present"

A ring recently exhibited at Antwerp was the admiration of diamond cutters and merchants, because it was the first successful attempt to cut a ring out of a single stone. There are a great many difficulties in this method of cutting diamonds, as the stones have a certain cleavage and particular veins, all of which have to be carefully studied in order to prevent splitting just as success seems within reach After several years' labor the feat has been accomplished by the patience and skill of M. Antoine, one of the best-known lapidaries of Antwerp The ring is about six-eighths of an inch in diameter In the Marlborough cabinet there is a ring cut out of one entire and perfect sapphire.

Americans are the best dancers in the world, says Carl Marwig. The Russians come second and the Spaniards third. The French and Germans do not count, When Americans dance abroad every-one else stops dancing to watch them. A leader of cotillions, Mr. Marwig believes, is born, not made. He must have a certain mental cleverness and quickness. His figures must be developed as the dance progresses. They must be simple, as well as attractive, and the man who is not a born cotillion leader will not make the dance a success.

District Court.

The District Court was occupied yesterday in hearing the motions in the Foley estate case, one of which was for a decision in favor of Mrs. Smith and the other for the eastern heirs. The motions were argued and submitted. Curler & Curler were admitted as attorneys in the case to represent W. E. Griffin, administrator, and they objected to further proceedings in the case on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction. This brought forth further argument, which took up most of the session.

Judge Mack rendered a decree last evening awarding one-half the estate to the Eostern heirs. The motion of Mr. Wren to award judgment to Mrs. Smith was denied, as was the motion in favor of the Public Administrator. The bonds for the Eastern heirs were fixed at $30,000.

Leary, Cæser Geyler, The Comstock Glee Club, Divide Brass Band of sixteen pieces and many others.

Quite Seriously Injured.

Jack Lannihan, who has been running the engine at Becker's Brewery, met with an accident yesterday morning that will lay him up for several days. While the injuries are very painful it is not thought that any serious results will follow.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN,

The Great Statesman, Receives a Royal Welcome in Reno.

J. R. Ryan, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, introduced Mr. Bryan as follows: "It is needless to say why we are assembled here this evening. It would be considered, owing to the limited time and to the distinguished gentlemen on my left, yes, it would be presumptuous on my part to attempt to consume any of the time that shall be allotted to him. I desire to present to you, ladies and gentlemen, the illustrious representative of the rights of the people, Hon. William Jennings Bryan."

Mr. Bryan spoke as follows:

"I am going to put on my cap to talk because I do not want to take cold. I dont want it understood that I would object dying for my country but while we have a country to serve I would rather live for my country. I have been very kindly treated in Nevada. Your Governor met me out on the road and has been a very pleasant companion on the way. The people of Carson have presented me with a beautiful silver plate that will be ever preserved among the souvenirs of this campaign. and the people of Elko and Winnemucca have furnished the lunches and it is left to the people of Reno to come out here at this unusual hour in the morning and finish the work as I pass from the State. I am not going to talk long, for I believe that it is unnecessary to talk here, for I have to begin in the morning and talk all day to-morrow and I believe I had better save my strength to help the people of Nevada by doing work in California. It is useless to tell you that it is the sick who need the medicine and not the well. You people are well here, but from the election returns it looks like they were a little sick in California, and I want to be able to talk there as much as possible.

"It may be interesting to you to know that the contest in which you took so much interest last fall has just commenced. Our opponents have been endeavoring to bury the silver question and every time they won a fight they tried to impress upon the people that silver was dead. It is not so, you cannot bury a righteous cause, you cannot kill a cause that has right on its side, and the silver question has arisen from the fight stronger than it ever was before. I received a letter not long ago from a man congratulating me upon my election, the foundation of the letter being the failure of banks and the bankruptcy of business men which results were predicted by the Republican party as the outcome of my election. I am glad that there is a way to prove my election because I frankly admit that I do not expect to draw the salary. It is admitted that the people were sick during the last campaign but they took the wrong medicine and got worse, and you can rest assured that upon watching its effect they will change their physician. The election came, but did not bring the confidence and prosperity that was expected. I believe that the silver people are happier to-day to know that our opponents were the victors.

"It was not my ambition to hold the office and give postmasterships to the people, but to bring back to the people those ideas of government which were promulgated by our forefathers. I was anxious to open the mints to the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver in accordance with the Constitution. When I found it was impossible to carry our ideas into execution I was glad to know that the burden had fallen onto others. But I am confident that the success of our opponents will prove the righteousness of our cause."

He referred to the elections at Chicago and in Ohio. Also referred to the influence exercised over the farmer by the business man, and the business man controlled by the local banks and the banks controlled by Wall street and the latter influenced by London. After several other illustrations of a similar trend he recognized that all men are free and equal and that a government which is just must give equal consideration to all. "I am glad that the good people of Nevada were with us in the last fight and will be with us in the next. I believe that when we have fought the fight to a finish and when we have driven the foreign influence from our shores, the American people will no longer be subjected to any foreign power."

FROM AN OLD NEVADAN

Now a Resident of the Great Northwest.

SEATTLE, June 28, 1897.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—It is long since I sent you one of my scrawls and my principal reason for not doing so is that you of Nevada have so little interest in this Northwestern country, that little beyond political affairs would be cared for, but the heart of a Nevada pioneer is always leaning toward the sagebrush state, and no other place can ever be to him a home, in the true sense of the term. The climate is different; the people are sadly different; the hearty grip of a Nevada friend is sadly missed and all is so entirely Yankee that one would almost fancy that he had been taken, when in a somnolent condition, from the extreme western to the far eastern part of the country, and these are the sentiments of other old time Nevadans with whom I have come in contact.

The Seattleites are going to have a grand three days Fourth of July ceremony. It will commence on Thursday and continue till Saturday night and people will come from Tacoma and all parts of the sound. I will send you a copy of the Post Intelligencer of Saturday next.

Were it not for the JOURNAL I should hear nothing of the doings in the dear old home, and if you ever stop sending it while the lamp holds out to burn, I shall call down bitter malediction upon you.

I see you will observe the Fourth on Monday next, and as I saw no notice of a poem I take the liberty of sending the inclosed, which if read on that day would be to me a greater pride than the presentation of an earldom title.

I am proud to learn of your mining prospects and the continued prosperity of Reno.

The old timers are doing tolerably well. Lindsay and King about as well as any of the lawyers, of whom Seattle is afflicted in hundreds. Bob is the same old coon. Major Parrish is enjoying his old life in comfort. Geo. Stewart sends regards to all; he is getting wealthy.

Best wishes to all friends, some of whom I know I possess. Yours,

DEACON.

NO HYPOCRISY IN BRYAN.

True to His Principles and the Laboring Classes.

An illustration of William J. Bryan's sincerety and loyalty to the people may be given by the following: Yesterday Hon. J. R. Ryan, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, wired Mr. Bryan at Wells: "Will you address the people of Reno while passing through regardless of the hour of arrival?" The message was answered from Deeth and read as follows:

"To J. R. Ryan.—Will speak regardless of the hour. W. J. BRYAN."

Many of the leading statesmen of the country would have replied that owing to the lateness of the hour or inclemency of the weather they would prefer not to be disturbed, but Bryan is a man of the people and the hour, or personal inconvenience makes little difference to him. He wants to meet the people and talk with them, hence does not study his own comfort or pleasure. This is not the only instance where Mr. Bryan has made every effort to meet appointments under the most difficult circumstances, fully believing that local committees had made arrangements and that the people had gathered to hear him and rather than to disappoint them he would suffer any inconvenience. There is no false pride about Bryan, nor does the recognition accorded him make a fool of him. He is a plain matter of fact citizen, ready to grasp the hand of any honest man regardless of station in life or party affiliation and sympathizes heartily with every poor man in the land and insists that labor is the bone and sinew of the goverment and demand shall receive proper consideration from the trust, monopoly or wealthy syndicate.

Miller & Lux Corporation

At Fresno, Cal., last week a certified copy of the articles of incorporation of "Miller & Lux" were filed in the county clerk's office. The old cattle firm is incorporated for fifty years with a capital stock of $12,000,000, divided into 120,000 shares, fourteen of which shares are subdivided—two each by Henry Miller, Henry Lux, Thomas B. Bishop, J. Leroy Nickel, E. T. Allen, Jesse S. Potter and Azro N. Lewis. This act of incorporation is understood to compromise all suits and contests between the Lux estate and Henry Miller, and leaves the great cattle barony in the control and under the direction of Henry Miller for a number of years to come.

The Verdi School Commencement.

The graduating exercises at the Verdi school on Thursday night were far above any previous efforts of the school and were of course greatly appreciated. Every feature of the program was well presented and highly by those present Professor Bray addressed the graduating class and gave the members good advice as to their future. Professor Ring and Mr. A. T. Brandon were present on the stage and by their presence aided in the exercises.

A Great Disappointment.

When it became known yesterday that the train bearing Mr. Bryan would be from three to four hours late in arriving at this point, there was general disappointment. It had been anticipated that Reno would have a gala night. That the crowds accompanied by bands from Virginia and Carson would just about take possession of the town and the Renoites were not only willing that they should, but were going to stand in and help them do it. Many of the business men decorated the fronts of their stores and had determined to show the visitors that Reno was alive. The committee on reception had completed all arrangements and it was intended to convince Mr. Bryan that Nevada from its eastern border to its western limit was for silver.

The delay of the train, however, demoralized all of the proposed plans and the special train from Virginia and Carson was abandoned.

Notwithstanding this over one hundred people, including the Virginia Glee Club and Divide Band of sixteen pieces, drove over the grade arriving here about 11:30. A disposition was shown to see Bryan in any event and the visitors all expressed themselves as fully repaid for their trouble
